Young Carlson, whose parents own the ood-stained cottage, learned from the wedish truckman who brought the furniture to the cottage that it came from rooms at 117 Clark street, opposite Cronin's office. Carison gave a close description of the man who hired the cottage.

The coroner's jury met this morning without taking testimony, and adjourned till Monday.

The attorney sent to Toronto by Dr. Cronin's friends to see C. T. Long, the newspaper correspondent who wrote fictitious interviews with the doctor, has returned. Long was laboring under a great nervous strain, but could not be brought to confess, in spite of the fact that Cronin was dead, that the alleged interviews were not genuine. While the attorney was in Toronto he met "Billy" Starkey, the Chicago attorney who left the city to escape going to the penitentiary for jury bribery.
